Customised enclosures for industrial metering

Ritherdon and Company provide a range of enclosures and panels for industrial metering applications.

These are developed to the design of the customer and many have been updated recently to take account of the changes in metering technology.

Boxes are supplied for both whole current and CT metering, and are available as empty units or fitted with busbars, fuses and test blocks for customers' immediate assembly.

We now also offer a pre-wiring service for standardised designs which is proving competitively priced and increasingly popular.
